What attracted your interest to IPSG?

I am actively involved in treating Perthes' disease. There is no consensus regarding the treatment of Perthes' disease throughout the world. IPSG forms a common platform to attract International Orthopaedic surgeons with the same motive. IPSG will form the basis to answer many unsolved questions regarding etiology and management of Perthes' disease.

What would you say is the most challenging part of treating Perthes Disease?

With the same treatment protocol, some patients do very well, some don't. Many variables also influence the treatment and prognosis. Selecting the appropriate variables and protocol are the most challenging part of the treating the disease.

What would you like to see accomplished through annual IPSG meetings?

We can understand the practical problems of the study and try to get answers of those in annual meeting. Progress of the outgoing study and new idea are evaluated during the annual meeting.
